How is the UK's ODA budget structured?

DFID manages 72% of the UK's ODA; this share is expected to decline to 70% by 2020

The Department for International Development (DFID) is the primary funder of the UK's ODA. According to the UK government document 'Statistics on International Development', DFID contributions accounted for 72% of ODA in 2016. Most of the remaining 28% is managed by other government departments, including the Department of Business, Energy, & Industrial Strategy (5.4%); the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (4.5%); the Conflict, Stability and Security Fund (3.9%); and the Home Office (2.4%).

The remaining ODA is not attributed to a particular department or ministry. In 2017 this included the UK's contributions to the International Monetary Fund's Poverty Reduction and Growth Trust (5.2%) and European Union contributions to global development funding (3.2%). According to the UK Parliament's International Development Committee, the UK government expects DFID's share of ODA to further decline to about 70% by 2020.

DFID plans to spend £10.4 billion (US$13.4 billion) through its various programs in fiscal year (FY) 2018-19 (see table below, based on data from 'DFID's Annual Reports and Accounts 2017-2018'). It is important to note that the spending plan is indicative. This means that DFID has the authority to make changes to its allocations and distribute funds to different programs and divisions throughout the year.
